Big Air Assault Staged

2,000 Chutists In Army Test

CAMP CAMPBELL, Ky., May 8—An air-drop by 2,000 paratroopers into "enemy" territory at Camp Campbell today started off 20 days of the largest American Army-Air Force training maneuvers since the war.

At H-Hour Minus 20—or 9:40 a. m. (EST)—the battle between U. S. forces and Gen. Sam Sloan's so-called aggressor "guerrillas" was joined just off the main airstrip.

At that time, two pathfinder groups of paratroopers made the initial air-drop to set the signals for troopers who followed.

At H-Hour, or 10 a. m., the 82nd Airborne Division began jumping from 76 C-82 "flying box cars."

Within 12 minutes, the entire 2,000 men hit the silk in the largest mass jump ever witnessed on the American continent.

In ADDITION, another estimated 1,000 parachutes rode down to earth carrying equipment of all types—from rations to artillery and ammunition.

Even as the paratroopers jumped, the aggressor forces set up a "barrage" and "attack" to keep Uncle Sam's forces from gaining the vital air strip. The jump was made to the accompaniment of the sounds of whistling bullets, cannon shots, whining lame and dud bombs.

Once the paratroopers landed and cleared the field of the aggressor forces, giant twin-engined C-82s returned to the Smyrna, S. C., air base and picked up 24 gliders filled with men and jeep-packed with equipment.

These gliders were put down on the "recaptured" air strip within two hours of the initial attack.

They were towed to the air head two-by-two by 12 C-82s. Aboard them were 105 mm. howitzers weighing 4,000 pounds, three-quarter ton trucks, jeeps and other types of equipment too heavy to be dropped safely by parachutes.

Participating in the D-Day maneuvers will be more than 255 of all types of aircraft. (Continued on Page Two)

STRONG PRESSURE FELT

Marshall's Globe-Trotting Is Bringing Criticism

WASHINGTON, May 8—Secretary of State Marshall was reported today to be under strong pressure to curtail his personal attendance at various international conferences and to devote himself more closely to State department operations.

Some seasoned department officials have told Marshall that handling of international affairs in the aggressor needs greater continuity than it has received since the war.

Elimination of Marshall's globe-trotting would be in line with the policy President Truman has advocated in dealing with Moscow. As far back as the Potsdam conference, Mr. Tru-mell said he should have been here during the Palestine crisis.

In addition there were the crucial Italian elections and the tension with Russia and her satellites in Berlin and Trieste.

Prior to Byrnes' administration the secretary of state rarely attended any but the most important international conferences personally.

In normal times Cordell Hull rarely went abroad. For even most important conferences he delegated the work to Sumner Welles, a career diplomat who was especially useful in Latin-American matters.

Marshall, likewise, it is said, could designate Norman Armour, assistant secretary of state, for conference work.

Locks were broken on the superintendent's office door and to the classrooms. Radcliff said entrance was made by crashing a lock on the rear door of the school.

CHICAGO, May 8—All that glitters is not gold—or diamonds—Mrs. Pauline Fanitsky of Chicago found to her dismay.

So she cashed her war bonds and bought 12 pieces of highly-polished glass for $2,000.

Mrs. Fanitsky said the nice-looking man told her in Russian he had to let the "diamonds go cheap" to help a relative escape from Russia.

After she had her prize catch appraised by a jeweler, Mrs. Fanitsky called police. She said she had been shopping for fish when she met the "diamond" seller.

Authorities investigating the work of Pickaway County's "schoolhouse burglars" expressed the belief that the recent outbreak is not the work of juveniles.

The incident involved the funeral of Pfc. James F. Donnelly Jr., who was killed when resuscitating a Marine buddy.

THE UNION refused to allow the military escort assigned as pallbearers, contending that such duties would have to be carried out by union men.

Jerusalem Truce Hailed, But Fierce Battle Rages

JERUSALEM, May 8—Jerusalem's strife-weary residents today hailed the Arab-Jewish agreement for a truce in the holy city, but continued fierce fighting was reported in Northern Palestine.

The cease-fire order for Jerusalem was ordered into effect at noon. Jerusalem time (5 a. m. EST). Agreement to halt warfare inside the holy city was announced by Haganah, Zionist militia, and Abdul Rahman Azzam Pasha, Arab League secretary-general.

An official British announcement said that the mandate will be terminated at 12:01 a. m., Jerusalem time, May 15. It was understood that some British officials had wanted the mandate held until midnight of the same day.

British sources also said that the Palestine government will not appoint an emergency mayor of Jerusalem, but will act on the United Nations' recommendation.

BBC IN LONDON said that British High Commissioner Lt. Gen. Sir Alan G. Cunningham met with Jewish leaders in Jerusalem to discuss a possible negotiated peace for all the Holy Land.

However, dispatches from Northern Palestine indicated that Arab-Jewish clashes are continuing. Haganah fighters, apparently intent on securing the Jewish state, which is to be proclaimed on May 16, were reported on the offensive in several sectors.

Jews claimed the capture of a key rail junction south of Tiberias, near the Sea of Galilee in Northern Palestine.

The Jewish source said that the action gave them control of three roads and a railway running from Syria to the port of Haifa.

West of the Sea of Galilee, Haganah spokesmen said their forces had occupied villages

Two-Year Draft Asked

More Would Give U.S. Good Force

WASHINGTON, May 8—The House armed services committee, by a top-heavy majority, called today for a two-year draft to meet the "ominous possibility that the Soviet Union may now be willing to risk a show-down."

The formal recommendation for an immediate draft of youths 19 through 25 to boost the armed forces by 621,382 men was issued along with a five-member minority report opposing the legislation.

The two reports were made public as the Senate armed services committee tentatively approved the major provisions of its two-way bill to draft men 19-year-olds for one year. The Senate group hoped for a final vote Monday.

Standing behind the draft program, the House committee warned that a 70-group Air Force is "not a substitute for selective service" and a powerful air arm is "not a panacea for security."

THE HOUSE bill would bring the active duty strength of the services to a total of 2,055,882 men. It would authorize new strengths of:

Amy, 887,000; Navy, 556,882; Marine Corps, 110,000; Air Force 502,000.

Aerial striking power, the House members insisted, must be supported and supplied by strong ground and naval forces.

The opponents of the draft urged that volunteer recruiting be improved by court martial reform, better housing for married enlisted men, shorter enlistments and other changes.

The new president of the chamber of deputies is Giovanni Gronchi, one-time minister of industry and commerce.

Gronchi, a Left-Wing Christian Democrat, was a famed resistance leader. He is often spoken of as Premier Alcide de Gasperi's "understudy."

The inaugural ceremonies marked the resumption of Democratic processes in Italy, suppressed when Mussolini's Fascist regime came into power.

THE THREAT of a Communist walkout, over alleged election frauds, still hangs over the parliament.

Landlubber Gets Port Captaincy

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., May 8—A landlubber who spent 30 years in the Army and never even set foot in Marblehead is the honorary captain of the port of this famed town today.

Marblehead selectmen conferred the honor on Sgt. Charles York, of St. Louis Mo., who is no relation to Sgt. York of World War I fame.

The St. Louis veteran was honored because he has been conducting an unpaid job as a publicity man for Marblehead, recommending it to his friends as a vacation spot.

Truman Observing 64th Birthday; Physician Says Health Excellent

WASHINGTON, May 8—President Truman is 64 years old today.

The chief executive, as usual, observed his birthday with busy hours at his desk.

Foremost of his problems was settlement of the threatened railroad strike.

The President planned a quiet luncheon with members of his immediate staff in the small dining room in the basement of the executive wing of the White House.

There were also reports that members of the cabinet and a few other top Democratic figures would be present at a stag dinner in the White House to-night.

THE PRESIDENT observed his first birthday anniversary in the White House just a few days after he became President. This was in 1945, and the day coincided with the surrender of Germany.

The chief executive was pronounced in excellent health today by his physician, Brig. Gen. Wallace Graham.

His weight is a trim 174 pounds. He is continuing his daily routine, arising at around 5 a. m., starting to work after a brief breakfast at around 6:30, taking a brief rest after lunch, then a late afternoon walk or swim, and going to bed usually around 10 p. m.

While almost all types of buildings started jumping greatly in February over those begun in the same month of 1947, by far the greatest increases were in two classes—apartment houses and amusement buildings.

BLS tabulations showed that dwellings for more than two families started in February increased 238.8 percent over February a year ago. Amusement buildings were up 235 percent.

Total value of all buildings started in February was $406,531,000, as compared to $278,501,000 in February 1947, and $426,531,000 in January 1948.

THE UNION refused to allow the military escort assigned as pallbearers, contending that such duties would have to be carried out by union men.

Flyer Derailed Near Shelby

SHELBY, May 8—An eastbound New York Central railroad passenger train was derailed at 8 a. m. today at Vernon Junction, two miles south of here.

Ten of 14 cars reportedly turned over and the engine was partially derailed. However, no one was reported hurt.

The basic outline of the proposal would appoint a body made up of the following:

1. The Security Council's consular group, which reportedly succeeded in negotiating a truce, for all of Jerusalem between the Jews and Arabs. This group includes the consuls general of the United States, France and Belgium.

2. Karel Lisicky, chairman of the Palestine Commission.

3. ONE OR TWO outstanding neutral representatives free of strong views and prejudices on the Holy Land situation.

The British plan stressed that the stop-gap body should be charged mainly with carrying on essential public services but ought not to be empowered to maintain law and order or seek enforcement troops.

The British offer came at a favorable moment, coinciding with the evident materialization of a city-wide truce in Jerusalem.

A fly in the ointment continues to be the outspoken threat by King Abdullah of Trans-Jordan to invade the Holy Land with Arab armies on May 16, truce or no truce.

A candidate for mayor of Jerusalem acceptable to the Jews and Arabs reportedly is in sight. Unconfirmed reports say he is an American.

The United States advanced as one candidate Charles Taft, brother of Sen. Robert A. Taft.

The Arabs rejected him, as well as several others.

In going abroad to attempt peace settlements, Marshall has followed the lead set by Secretary James F. Byrnes, who, during his tenure spent more than half his time abroad.

MARSHALL'S latest absence was at the Bogota Pan-American conference, which many observers believe hurt rather than aided inter-American relations.

During this time Marshall was criticized at home because he was absent during serious international developments. Some critics felt he should have been here during the Palestine crisis.

In addition there were the crucial Italian elections and the tension with Russia and her satellites in Berlin and Trieste.

Prior to Byrnes' administration the secretary of state rarely attended any but the most important international conferences personally.

Burglars Enter Fourth County Schoolhouse

Pickaway County sheriff's office was puzzled Saturday over the fourth schoolhouse burglary in two weeks after Superintendent Warren Hobble at Atlanta reported his office was rifled Friday night.

Sheriff's Deputies Carl Radcliff and Vern L. Pontius, investigating the burglary, said no money was taken, but that Hobble's office, the cafeteria and several classrooms had been ransacked.

Locks were broken on the superintendent's office door and to the classrooms. Radcliff said entrance was made by crashing a lock on the rear door of the school.

Last weekend, burglars stole $100 from a safe in the Williamsport school and the weekend previous, schools at Ashville and Pickaway Township were looted.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff has issued a general warning to all school officials not to leave money in offices "until this matter is cleaned up."

Unionists Standing By In Capital

Steelman may attempt to get both sides into a joint negotiation session later.

An atmosphere of pessimism surrounded the White House talks. Additional railroads throughout the country put into effect an embargo on shipments of livestock, live poultry and perishable foods.

The Association of American Railroads said a total of 48 lines had announced plans to institute the ban prior to the strike deadline so that such goods would not be caught in transit by a walkout.

IF STEELMAN'S mediation efforts fail, government seizure of the railroads appears inevitable. Attorney General Tom Clark already has advised President Truman that he has the power to order seizure under a 1916 law applicable in wartime. World War II is not legally ended.

There appeared to be little room for compromise or bargaining in the dispute. The carriers have resisted any suggestion that they deviate from a 15½ cent hourly settlement made last Fall with 18 other railroad unions representing over a million workers.

The engineers, firemen and switchmen turned down the 15½ cent boost as insufficient, despite the fact that it was recommended by a presidential fact-finding board.

The government's chief hope for a compromise agreement lies in the matter of working rules changes sought by the three strike-threatening brotherhoods.

One of the major changes they are seeking is time and one-half pay for Sunday and holiday work. Others include pay for preparatory time at the start of a trip and for any delay encountered in getting into a terminal at the end of a run.

Young Urging Lausche Backing

CLEVELAND, May 7—Stephen M. Young, Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large, today joined the growing forces demanding a reshuffling of the state Democratic forces.

Young declared that "now that the primary is behind us, I urge a strong and united party loyally backing Frank J. Lausche for governor."

"Any Ohio Democratic organization leaders who will not sincerely support his candidacy and work for his success in November should step aside, or be displaced, for those of us who propose to work wholeheartedly for election of the entire Democratic ticket." Young supported Lausche's opponent, Ray T. Miller, in the primary.

LONDON, May 8—Reuters reported from Seoul, Korea, today that 15 Communists and a policeman were killed in pre-election battles on Chejudo island in South Korea.

In Seoul, the chairman of a local election committee was reportedly killed by unidentified assailants. Also in the capital, a rightwing newspaper office was burned. Three cases of railroad sabotage were reported.

Radar Pondered As Speed Trap

COLUMBUS, May 8—Columbus police are planning to use radar to trap speeders, but Municipal Court Judge John M. Matthias isn't certain it will furnish bona-fide court evidence.

Judge Matthias indicated he was impressed by a demonstration of the device yesterday, but he said court tests would be necessary to establish validity of the readings as evidence.

Power Advocates Say Move Afoot Crippling TVA

WASHINGTON, May 8—Three public power advocates in the House today accused private utilities of attempting to "cripple the TVA" as the stage was set for a battle Monday over expansion of Tennessee Valley electric power.

Rep. Kefauver, (D) Tenn., charged that a "powerful lobby" was behind the effort to prevent the construction of a $54 million steam plant by TVA.

Rep. Gore, (D) Tenn., will offer an amendment Monday to restore $4 million requested by the TVA for beginning construction of a steam plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn., to generate additional power.

The House appropriations committee struck out the funds.

Rep. Rankin, (D) Miss., charged that "the power trust is doing all it can to cripple the TVA." Rankin, who teamed up with the late Sen. Pupil Rebellion Is Short-Lived

MANSFIELD, May 8—A short-lived rebellion was nipped in the bud at Mansfield high school yesterday.

Free distribution of detention periods by teachers quickly quelled the disturbance caused by a faculty crackdown on high school class truants.

The students were protesting rigid enforcement of rules for release of pupils from classrooms. The rules require a pupil to present a permit signed by a teacher when found in the school corridors during class periods.

Solons Demand Probe Of 'Red' Radio Permits

WASHINGTON, May 8—Two members of the House Un-American Activities Committee joined in a demand today for open hearings to determine whether "Communist sympathizers" are obtaining radio permits from the Federal Communications Commission to establish a "red network."

Rep. Hebert, (D) La., who called for an investigation of the FCC, asserted that the full facts uncovered by committee probes should be made public.

He announced he would formally request a public hearing on his charge that Edward Lamb of Toledo, who obtained five licenses from the FCC in two weeks' time, has "expansive records of association with the Communist Party in America, front organizations and fellow travellers."

He said he will take action upon his return to Washington from Louisiana in 10 days.

Hebert was joined in his demand for an investigation by Rep. McDowell, (R) Pa., who asserted that "too many small stations are coming under control of Leftist groups."

Chief Says Fish Story 'Fishy'

Police Chief William F. McCrady had three Columbus lads in his office Saturday whom he termed "little marvels".

The three lads, one 16 and two 13, were picked up in front of City Hall Saturday morning on their way to "fish".

McCrady, an old line-dangler himself, smelled fishiness in their story when the lads told him they were broke and he could find no trace of any fishing equipment about the lads.

The Columbus youths were held at the station awaiting arrival of Columbus juvenile authorities.

Youngster Hurt By Passing Car

Arlen Miller, 12, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Miller of 369 East Franklin street, was bruised slightly Friday afternoon when she reportedly walked into the path of a car driven by Mary J. Hawkes, 18, of 360 East Franklin street.

Police records say that Miss Hawkes was travelling south on Court street about 25 feet from the intersection of Court and Main streets when the Miller girl darted from between parked cars.

New Lex Man Held In Thefts

COLUMBUS, May 8—A series of at least ten auto thefts was cleared up today with the confession of Paul Van Bibber, 23, of New Lexington.

Van Bibber admitted the crimes after being arrested for stealing the automobile of Mrs. Sylvia Newburger Thursday night. He pulled the woman from the parked car and drove it away.

The New Lexington man also was accused on two counts of molesting women.

Accidents in 1947 killed 100,000 persons, injured 10,500,000, and caused economic losses totaling $6,700,000,000 in the United States, the National Safety Council reports. Fatalities were up 2 per cent from 1946 when 98,033 lost their lives.

Fighting Continues In Zion

Earlier, Haganah had claimed the capture of Safad, an Arab city north of the sea of Galilee.

EVEN AS NEWS of the Jerusalem truce was made public, the holy city was rocked by artillery and machinegun fire.

While Cunningham was phoning the truce agreement from his Jerusalem home to the public information office, a three-way battle raged in the Yemin Moshe quarter.

Cunningham's staff was reported to have sought cover on the floor from stray bullets while the British officially announced the ceasefire pact.

Unionists Standing By In Capital

White House official sounded out the industry representatives on prospects for a settlement of the wage dispute.

Steelman may attempt to get both sides into a joint negotiating session later.

An atmosphere of pessimism surrounded the White House talks. Additional railroads throughout the country put into effect an embargo on shipments of livestock, live poultry and perishable foods.

The Association of American Railroads said a total of 48 lines had announced plans to institute the ban prior to the strike deadline so that such goods would not be caught in transit by a walkout.

IF STEELMAN'S mediation efforts fail, government seizure of the railroads appears inevitable. Attorney General Tom Clark already has advised President Truman that he has the power to order seizure under a 1916 law applicable in wartime. World War II is not legally ended.

There appeared to be little room for compromise or bargaining in the dispute. The carriers have resisted any suggestion that they deviate from a 15½ cent hourly settlement made last Fall with 18 other railroad unions representing over a million workers.

The engineers, firemen and switchmen turned down the 15½ cent boost as insufficient, despite the fact that it was recommended by presidential fact-finding board.

The government's chief hope for a compromise agreement lies in the matter of working rules changes sought by the three strike-threatening brotherhoods.

One of the major changes they are seeking is time and one-half pay for Sunday and holiday work. Others include pay for preparatory time at the start of a trip and for any delay encountered in getting into a terminal at the end of a run.

Young Urging Lausche Backing

CLEVELAND, May 7—Stephen M. Young, Democratic candidate for congress man-at-large, today joined the growing forces demanding a reshuffling of the state Democratic forces.

Young declared that "now that the primary is behind us, I urge a strong and united party lineal backing Frank J. Lausche for governor."

"Any Ohio Democratic organization leaders who will not sincerely support his candidacy and work for his success in November should step aside, or be displaced, for those of us who propose to work wholeheartedly for election of the entire Democratic ticket." Young supported Lausche's opponent, Ray T. Miller, in the primary.

15 Reds, Cop Die In Clash

LONDON, May 8—Reuters reported from Seoul, Korea, today that 15 Communists and a policeman were killed in pre-election battles on Chejudo island in South Korea.

The news agency said that the clash was one of several violent outbreaks in the U.S. southern zone, stemming from the Communists' campaign against Monday's elections.

In Seoul, the chairman of a local election committee was reportedly killed by unidentified assailants. Also in the capital, a rightwing newspaper office was burned. Three cases of railroad sabotage were reported.

Radar Pondered As Speed Trap

COLUMBUS, May 8—Columbus police are planning to use radar to trap speeders, but Municipal Court Judge John M. Matthias isn't certain it will furnish bona-fide court evidence.

Police Capt. Frank L. Harrison said a radar view screen will be used in traffic control areas to automatically record the speed of passing vehicles.

Judge Matthias indicated he was impressed by a demonstration of the device yesterday, but he said court tests would be necessary to establish validity of the readings as evidence.

Power Advocates Say Move Afoot Crippling TVA

WASHINGTON, May 8—Three public power advocates in the House today accused private utilities of attempting to "cripple the TVA" as the stage was set for a battle Monday over expansion of Tennessee Valley electric power.

Rep. Kefauver, (D) Tenn., charged that a "powerful lobby" was behind the effort to prevent the construction of a $54 million steam plant by TVA.

Rep. Gore, (D) Tenn., will offer an amendment Monday to restore $4 million requested by the TVA for beginning construction of a steam plant at New Johnsonville, Tenn., to generate additional power.

The House appropriations committee struck out the funds.

Rep. Rankin, (D) Miss., charged that "the power trust is doing all it can to cripple the TVA." Rankin, who teamed up with the late Sen. Norris, (R) Neb., in sponsoring the TVA Act in 1933, added that it looked to him "as if the power trust is trying to move in" on the nation's first great public power project.

Scripture—The Book of Esther

By Alfred J. Buescher

Vashti, queen of Ahasuerus, king of Persian, offended the king so that he dismissed her from court; then the king had letters sent to all parts of the kingdom demanding that fair young women be sent to appear before him so that he might choose a new queen. Esther, a young Jewish maiden, was his choice.

In Ahasuerus' court was a man named Haman, whom the king honored and to whom he gave power. All saluted Haman but the adopted father of Esther, Mordecai, who refused to bow before him. Haman therefore plotted against him and got the king to sign an edict that all Jews should be killed.

Mordecai informed Esther of the horror about to befall her people, and she promised to intercede with the king, even though she knew she was risking her life to do so if she went to him without being sent for. The king held out his sceptre to her, however, and she told him of Haman's savage plot.

Ahasuerus loved Esther above all things, and he had also read in his archives that her adopted father, Mordecai, had once saved the king from assassins, he therefore exalted Mordecai, directed his anger against Haman, and had him hanged.

Excerpt from Teachings of the BAHAI FAITH

"Since there is only one God, the great Teachers of religion in all ages have each taught the same religious faith. They have developed and adapted it to meet the needs of the people in each period of history. This unfoldment of religion from age to age is called 'progressive revelation'. Baha'u'llah, the Founder of the Baha'i Faith, is the Manifestation of God for our time."

NO UNION YET

DE VALERA was wrong. The former prime minister of Eire has recently been touring the United States, telling his audiences that the present partition of the Irish is due to the British, and that left to itself, Northern Ireland would gladly come under the Eire government. This is now flatly denied by Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland.

Ireland, says Brooke, is like India and Palestine, divided into two groups which differ markedly in religion, and to some extent in race, since there is a Scotch-Irish admixture in North Ireland. Just as Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan decided that they could get along better separately, so this is true of Northern Ireland and Eire. In 1914 the Ulstermen (Ulster being the chief county of Northern Ireland) threatened to resist by force if an Irish home rule bill was passed. Only the outbreak of the first world war postponed the issue. According to Brooke, Ulster and its neighboring counties feel just as strongly now.

De Valera might be wiser to admit this. No one ever gained anything by deceiving himself.

SORROW OF PALESTINE

IT IS a part of the misfortunes of Palestine that the long-smouldering trouble between Jews and Arabs was brought to a head at a time when the larger nations, which might have been counted on to help, had a great deal else on their minds.

It is plain to the most charitable observer of the present United Nations debate on Palestine that the nations represented there are probing fundamental questions of their own relations with each other, and that Palestine is only a pawn in the game.

Out of the struggle with the problem of Palestine may come finally the framework of a more effective and more workable United Nations Organization. If so then the world will be indebted to the unhappy little Holy Land for furnishing the anvil upon which the pieces of the framework could be beaten into shape.

When a more workable United Nations emerges, if it does, then it will be able to solve the Palestine problem. Meanwhile the people of the Holy Land seem destined to suffer their troubles a little longer.

The popular idea that the Russians are vetoing everything in the United Nations meeting is wrong. The General Assembly has just elected Burma to membership, and the vote was unanimous. Russia and her satellite states voted aye, along with the United States and Great Britain.

What the present world needs is a "cease fire pact" that will stay packed.

'Round Circleville - - - Hour by Hour

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another dreary morning. Rain and more rain, rain that no one wishes and no one can do anything about. Farmers beginning to worry about corn planting and with reason. Some grain in the ground and it may rot unless the Spring sun soon returns. Looked over the dandelion crop in the lawn and decided little if anything could be done about it. One of the big problems of rural residence. Seed blows in from pasture fields and no stopping them.

That Joe Adkins must be a much better farmer than I thought. Driving a station wagon. A distinct mark of success. Take back all the slanderous remarks I have made about his ability as a tiller of the soil. Drives a standard sedan in his role as attorney. Uses the station wagon as Farmer Joe.

Chatted with Bob Rader, the banker, and heard how some men like to sit and think of how much money they have, and others sit and think of how much money they need and do not have. Still others just sit.

Much talk of the threatened rail strike. Folk hereabouts hold less and less sympathy for labor and industrial leaders who can not agree on a wage that is fair to both labor and management. Certainly, they say, such a figure could be reached without too much difficulty. Anyway, they want no strike and if Washington permits a walkout Truman might just as well walk out with the rail workers. Maybe the Taft Hartley bill needs more teeth, teeth that can and will sink into the wrong side be it either management or labor.

A few weeks back everyone was expecting quick war with Russia. Now, everyone is more optimistic. The scrivener has had no particular fear of an immediate war with the Reds.

That because he figured that the Reds are in no position to stage a war. Our congress by voting billions to the armed services has thrown a fresh chill into Uncle Joe. Congress and American industry that knows how to produce for victory. Russia knows something about American industry's productive force. American munitions stopped the Germans in Russia. Without Yank supplies the Krauts would have chased the Russians clear into the Arctic circle. Maybe we should have withheld those supplies.

These Days

No country, other than the United States, today possesses what used to be called a navy. But there is still potency in attack on the seas; in fact, the current submarine is more dangerous because of its wider range, its ability to remain under water for longer periods and its greater firing capacity. In a word, the submarine can still prevent us from importing what we need, from supplying our forces abroad and from moving men overseas.

Prior to the 1939-45 War, Soviet Russia had no navy of any account. As for surface ships, that is still her condition. Her coastline, both in Europe and Asia, has been increased: in Asia, from Vladivostok to Port Arthur; in Europe, from Murmansk to Hamburg.

From the Germans, Soviet Russia, with the consent of the United States, inherited a submarine fleet which she added to her own fleet. The Germans, toward the end of the war, were manufacturing a revolutionary, true submarine called Type 21. This vessel is able to "breathe" under water through a "schnorkel." The greatest advantage of this device is that it provides wider range and greater invisibility, pulling the submarine out of the radar detection field and thereby making defense against it more difficult.

These submarines were being built in the Harz Mountains, in parts, and were floated down river to Danzig, Hamburg and Bremen where they were assembled in huge shipyards. The Russians got Danzig and Hamburg by conquest and the shipyards at Bremen by reparations. Thus, they came into possession of more power than they had been able to produce in 300 years.

And they came into possession of a large number of German fast, true submarines, either completed or in parts. These submarines have a different type hull to provide faster underwater speed. They have more and better batteries. They have the "schnorkel" which "breathes" under water. This is the Type 21.

I believe that Soviet Russia, the United States and Great Britain agreed to take 10 each of modern U-boats and to destroy any others that fell into their hands. But the Russians did not do that. Instead, they created a large submarine fleet, which is estimated to consist of 150-200 seagoing submarines and 75-100 coastal submarines.

Of Type 21, they have surely 25, and possibly 100, because there were parts for between 90 and 100, and they have presumably assembled them by now in their shipyards where they have German scientists and skilled laborers working for them.

That is their fleet. How much this can be expanded with their present facilities is not known and has still to be seen.

The United States actually has about 80 submarines in operation and about an equal number in the mothball fleet. We have four of Type 21 and six of other new German types. We have and know everything that the Germans had and are continuing to improve upon them. I am told that we have a radar picket type, a guided missile type and a transport type under construction.

I have listened to much dispute, but the preponderance of opinion is that we do not require, in the present state of the world's fleets, a very much larger submarine force. What we do need—and badly—is increased anti-submarine weapons.

Grigg, manager-to-be of the new General Electric plant. Only 34 years old and in full charge of a $2,500,000 industry. Has everything successful management demands. Already looking toward local residence and he will be a fine and valuable new citizen. We all will be proud of him. Asked about housing facilities for his family. When given the answer you know he immediately asked about a contractor to build a home. About a dozen key men coming here with Ed this Fall. All of them will require homes. Any idea where or how they can be housed. And is any organization in the village doing anything about housing?

Chatted with a doctor and he was expecting quick war with Russia. Now, everyone is more optimistic. The scrivener has had no particular fear of an immediate war with the Reds. MUST BID 4-CARDERS

• OF YOU ARE going to win in the long run, you must occasionally bid a four-card major suit which has less than "a trick and a half" at its top. Otherwise you will miss plenty of games and slams which can not be made in any other declaration. In fact, a good deal of the science of fine bidding lies in finding fits of four cards opposite four in a major suit, especially if one or both hands can offer a doubleton or singleton where a ruffing trick or two may be obtained.

If West had led his fourth-best diamond against that, South could have made the contract. But that doughy defender knew the advantages of a major suit lead and opened his heart. South managed to get only eleven tricks, with four in spades, three in hearts, three in diamonds and one in clubs. He played the latter suit naturally, trying the finesse of the Q, and lost to the K, plus a later trick to the 10. His only way to make the contract would have been by playing the 8 on the first club round, then the A, or vice-versa. But who would do that?

There were sounder ways to bid that deal into the sure 6-Spades, in which a diamond ruff would furnish the twelfth trick. As between North and South, it could have gone thus: 1-Club, 1-Diamond; 1-Spade, 3-Spades and then the Blackwood into a spade small slam. Or it could have been simpler: 1-Spade, 3-Spades and then the Blackwood. Failure of either partner to bid spades, just because he had "only one honor trick" in the suit, is what wrecked the pair.

A Cough Should Be Diagnosed

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

NOWADAYS, when so many people smoke, there is a tendency to regard every cough as simply due to too many cigarettes. This is a bad thought because it often means neglect of coughing which signals some really serious disorder.

There are many different types of coughing and these are so distinctive that years ago, when modern methods of diagnosis were not available, doctors relied heavily on the mere sound of the cough to tell them what was wrong. For example, a brassy cough indicates swelling of the aorta, the great artery coming from the heart. Its enlargement causes pressure on the windpipe and this, in turn, stimulates the coughing attacks.

Croupy cough is commonly associated with conditions which produce swellings of the larynx or voicebox.

Coughing, in attacks, may mean whooping cough or some other condition which produces an excessive amount of secretion in the windpipe and the tubes in the lungs known as the bronchi.

A dry cough, on the other hand, means, as a rule, that an excessive amount of secretion is not present. Tumor or cancer of the lungs frequently produces a cough of this type.

Cause Must Be Found

Since coughing is only a symptom, it cannot be treated properly until the cause is found. It is often one of the important signs in the common everyday infections of the respiratory tract. It is nearly always present in tuberculosis of the lung, lung abscess and pneumonia, and we all must remember that serious lung tumors also cause coughing.

The end of the meal. And Madame Kingsley withdrawing, as usual, two bright spots of color on her cheeks. (From a nurtured indignation? Or from the headache she had said she had? Briefly Anne wondered and then forgot her.) And Gram lingering on in the dining room to help Annabel clear away. And the rest of them moving into the living room for after-dinner coffee. And Don saying, "I must be going." And Helen protesting quickly, "Oh, no! Not yet." And Julia on the davenport pouring the coffee, repeating Helen's protest cordially. And John, handing around the cups and then taking a stand by his brother before the fireplace and remarking, "You're just in time, Alec. Helen and I are planning to go to New York for while this winter. We couldn't do it if you weren't to be here to take charge." And Alec's hand, holding his demitasse, pausing halfway to his lips before he answered, a trifle sharply, "Well! I must say you're trusting!"

"You can manage."

"It isn't that."

"What is it?"

"Well, for one thing, I'm not officially released yet. And for another—"

"Even so, perhaps I shouldn't—" His glance met Anne's across the room, and John, anticipating his thought, said quickly, "We won't leave till you get back from your honeymoon—naturally."

"Thanks." There was a dryness in Alec's tone now and a flash in his eyes and he put his cup and saucer down on the mantelpiece behind him with a movement of impatient annoyance. He doesn't like having plans made for him Anne thought. But his voice was light and easy again as he turned back to John. He had wanted to go to Alaska. The recollect words pierced Anne's mind like a blade of light and she suddenly understood him. He had never wanted to stay here and farm. He had wanted to travel and see the world as Alec had done. That was why he hadn't been a better farmer. For him there had been a war, too, nearly thirty years ago, but no chance to go to it. He had had to remain at Stone House. There had been no one else. She looked at him and was sorry she had ever, for even a brief moment, not liked him, because it must be terribly hard not to have what you wanted most in the world. And then she looked at Julia and wondered if she knew, too. But of course. That was probably what made her so wonderfully patient. "I think he feels—frustrated." Julia had said that to Anne the day of her arrival. Yes, Julia knew as she always knew everything about her family.

She came again to Alec who sat there talking—talking. Was he talking too much, perhaps? Yet how could that be when he had been away so long—four years—and had seen so many things?

NO UNION YET

DE VALERA was wrong. The former prime minister of Eire has recently been touring the United States, telling his audiences that the present partition of the Irish is due to the British, and that left to itself, Northern Ireland would gladly come under the Eire government. This is now flatly denied by Sir Basil Brooke, prime minister of Northern Ireland.

Ireland, says Brooke, is like India and Palestine, divided into two groups which differ markedly in religion, and to some extent in race, since there is a Scotch-Irish admixture in Northern Ireland. Just as Hindu India and Moslem Pakistan decided that they could get along better separately, so this is true of Northern Ireland and Eire. In 1914 the Ulstermen (Ulster being the chief county of Northern Ireland) threatened to resist by force if an Irish home rule bill was passed. Only the outbreak of the first world war postponed the issue. According to Brooke, Ulster and its neighboring countries feel just as strongly now.

De Valera might be wiser to admit this. No one ever gained anything by deceiving himself.

SORROW OF PALESTINE

IT IS a part of the misfortunes of Palestine that the long-smouldering trouble between Jews and Arabs was brought to a head at a time when the larger nations, which might have been counted on to help, had a great deal else on their minds.

It is plain to the most charitable observer of the present United Nations debate on Palestine that the nations represented there are probing fundamental questions of their own relations with each other, and that Palestine is only a pawn in the game.

Out of the struggle with the problem of Palestine may come finally the framework of a more effective and more workable United Nations Organization. If so then the world will be indebted to the unhappy little Holy Land for furnishing the anvil upon which the pieces of the framework could be beaten into shape.

When a more workable United Nations emerges, if it does, then it will be able to solve the Palestine problem. Meanwhile the people of the Holy Land seem destined to suffer their troubles a little longer.

The popular idea that the Russians are vetoing everything in the United Nations meeting is wrong. The General Assembly has just elected Burma to membership, and the vote was unanimous. Russia and her satellite states voted aye, along with the United States and Great Britain.

What the present world needs is a "cease fire pact" that will stay packed.

'Round Circleville - - - Hour by Hour

Pages from the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:

Up to another dreary morning. Rain and more rain, rain that no one wishes and no one can do anything about. Farmers beginning to worry about corn planting and with reason. Some grain in the ground and it may rot unless the Spring sun soon returns. Looked over the dandelion crop in the lawn and decided little if anything could be done about it. One of the big problems of rural residence. Seed blows in from pasture fields and no stopping them.

That Joe Adkins must be a much better farmer than I thought. Driving a station wagon. A distinct mark of success. Take back all the slanderous remarks I have made about his ability as a tiller of the soil. Drives a standard sedan in his role as attorney. Uses the station wagon as Farmer Joe.

Chatted with Bob Rader, the banker, and heard how some men like to sit and think of how much money they have, and others sit and think of how much money they need and do not have. Still others just sit.

Much talk of the threatened rail strike. Folk hereabouts hold less and less sympathy for labor and industrial leaders who can not agree on a wage that is fair to both labor and management. Certainly, they say, such a figure could be reached without too much difficulty. Anyway, they want no strike and if Washington permits a walkout Truman might just as well walk out with the rail workers. Maybe the Taft-Hartley bill needs more teeth, teeth that can and will sink into the wrong side to be either management or labor.

A few weeks back everyone was expecting quick war with Russia. Now, everyone is more optimistic. The scrivener has had no particular fear of an immediate war with the Reds. That because he figured that the Reds are in no position to stage a war. Our congress by voting billions to the armed services has thrown a fresh chill into Uncle Joe. Congress and American industry that know how to produce for victory. Russia knows something about American industry's productive force. American munitions stopped the Germans in Russia. Without Yank supplies the Krauts would have chased the Russians clear into the Arctic circle. Maybe we should have withheld those supplies.

Met and chatted with Ed

Grigg, manager-to-be of the new General Electric plant. Only 34 years old and in full charge of a $2,500,000 industry. Has everything successful management demands. Already looking toward local residence and he will be a fine and valuable new citizen. We will be proud of him. Asked about housing facilities for his family. When given the answer you know he immediately asked about a contractor to build a home. About a dozen key men coming here with Ed this Fall. All of them will require homes. Any idea where or how they can be housed. And is any organization in the village doing anything about housing?

Chatted with a doctor and he wished for sunshine even more than the farmers and fishermen. "Feeling mighty low," he declared. "Depressed. Everyone is depressed. Practically every one of my patients is depressed. Feels that death's door is swinging wide. Oh, what I would give for a few days of sunshine." And so would I, doc. (Didn't mention your name for fear of disillusioned patients mobbing you. When a man figures he is dying that's all there is to it. He's dying even though he may be out on the golf course day after tomorrow.)

George E. Sokolsky's These Days

No country, other than the United States, today possesses what used to be called a navy. But there is still potency in attack on the seas; in fact, the current submarine is more dangerous because of its wider range, its ability to remain under water for longer periods and its greater firing capacity. In a word, the submarine can still prevent us from importing what we need, from supplying our forces abroad and from moving men overseas.

Prior to the 1939-45 War, Soviet Russia had no navy of any account. As for surface ships, that is still her condition. Her coastline, both in Europe and Asia, has been increased: in Asia, from Vladivostok to Port Arthur; in Europe, from Murmansk to Hamburg.

From the Germans, Soviet Russia, with the consent of the United States, inherited a submarine fleet which she added to her own fleet. The Germans, toward the end of the war, were manufacturing a revolutionary, true submarine called Type 21. This vessel is able to "breathe" under water through a "schnorkel." The greatest advantage of this device is that it provides wider range and greater visibility, pulling the submarine out of the radar detection field and thereby making defense against it more difficult.

These submarines were being built in the Harz Mountains, in parts, and were floated down river to Danzig, Hamburg and Bremen where they were assembled in huge shipyards. The Russians got Danzig and Hamburg by conquest and the shipyards at Bremen by reparations. Thus, they came into possession of more power than they had been able to produce in 300 years.

And they came into possession of a large number of German fast, true submarines, either completed or in parts. These submarines have a different type hull to provide faster underwater speed. They have the "schnorkel" which "breathes" under water. This is the Type 21.

I believe that Soviet Russia, the United States and Great Britain agreed to take 10 each of modern U-boats and to destroy any others that fell into their hands. But the Russians did not do that. Instead, they created a large submarine fleet, which is estimated to consist of 150-200 seagoing submarines and 75-100 coastal submarines.

Of Type 21, they have surely 25, and possibly 100, because there were parts for between 90 and 100, and they have presumably assembled them by now in their shipyards where they have German scientists and skilled laborers working for them.

That is their fleet. How much this can be expanded with their present facilities is not known and has still to be seen.

The United States actually has about 80 submarines in operation and about an equal number in the mothball fleet. We have four of Type 21 and six of other new German types. We have and know everything that the Germans had and are continuing to improve upon them. I am told that we have a radar picket type, a guided missile type and a transport type under construction.

I have listened to much dispute, but the preponderance of opinion is that we do not require, in the present state of the world's fleets, a very much larger submarine force. What we do need—and badly—is increased anti-submarine weapons.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO
Alec took the center of the stage. Alec, so gay, so breezy. Kiddling Gram out of her bossiness. Smoothing down Madame Kingsley with his courteous deference. Flattering Helen. Watchful of Julia. And always offering Anne that special attention she had so nearly forgotten. The meaningful look, the affectionate touch. He would interrupt his own speech to give her; these and her heart swelled nearly to bursting with happiness.

Henry spoke.
"Tell me about Kiska. You went there first, didn't you?"

"Kiska? Yes. Damnable place. A howling fury of bitter wind and snow and sleet. Was I glad to clear out of there!"

"Alaska. Did you see anything of Alaska?" Henry's blunt-featured square face had lost its stolidity and was almost eager. He went on, as if he were talking to himself, his carving knife poised in forgetfulness of his task. "I always hankered to go to Alaska."

"You can have it. Give me Hawaii." Alec pursed his fingers and blew a kiss into the air. Then, remembering, he turned to Anne. "That's the spot, isn't it?"

She nodded. She was aware of Don looking at her from across the table and she sent him a fleeting, radiant look of triumph. You see, I was right and you were wrong. It wasn't a dream. Or if it was, it's come true.

So now she would have what she had told Don she wanted. Laughter and love and a lot of children growing up in peace and beauty and safety under the sun and the moon and the stars that forever shone on Stone House.

Henry silent again. Asking no more questions. I always hankered to go to Alaska. The recollect words pierced Anne's mind like a blade of light and she suddenly understood him. He had never wanted to stay here and farm. He had wanted to travel and see the world as Alec had done. That was why he hadn't been a better farmer. Francis Biddle, lawyer and former attorney general of the United States, and Richard Barthelmess, long time motion picture star, celebrate birthdays on Sunday, April 9.

IT HAPPENED TODAY

This is the date of the third anniversary of V-E Day, after World War II. The battle of the Coral Sea, one of the most decisive naval engagements in history, was fought on May 8, 1942. It ended in victory for the United States. Martha Washington, wife of the first president of the United States, was born on this date in 1732. John Howard Payne's "Home Sweet Home" was first sung as part of the opera, "Clari, the Maid of Milan," on May 8, 1823.

Milton Caniff, creator of the newspaper adventure strip, "Steve Canyon," sold newspapers when he was nine, in Hillsboro, Ohio. Milt attended Ohio State University, where he participated in school dramatics and served as art editor of campus magazines working as retoucher in the art department of a Columbus newspaper at $17 a week. Caniff had a strong urge to go on the stage, but Billy Ireland of a Columbus paper advised, "Stick to the stage, but don't eat." In 1932 Caniff went to New York and drew comic strips. "Steve Canyon" first appeared in 1947. Caniff writes with his right hand, but draws with his left.

He entered Oberlin College in 1915, later transferring to Yale, where he earned his way by organizing a co-operative tutoring bureau and captained the debating team. In World War I he went to Chicago.

Remember Mother On 'Her' Day

With Mother's Day coming up Sunday, the thoughtful child in addition to giving her a bottle of perfume, a new handbag, or two or three pairs of nylons will make Mother a present of a little leisure on "Her Day" if its no more than preparing the Sunday dessert.

So—how about baking Mother a cake?

Here's one that any teenager can tackle and be sure of success:

Sift flour to the amount of 2 c., measure the 2 c. into the sifter, add $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. salt and set sifter aside. Melt 4 sq. unsweetened chocolate and 4 tbsp. butter or other shortening in a mixing bowl over hot water. Cool to room temperature. (This is important). Add 2 c. sugar and mix well. Mix together 2 un-beaten egg yolks and 1 c. milk; add to chocolate mixture and blend well. Sift in flour, mix until all flour is dampened, then beat 1 min. at low speed or about 150 strokes by hand. Add 1 tsp. vanilla and half a c. more milk; stir until smooth. Dissolve 1 tsp. soda in another $\frac{1}{4}$ c. milk; stir into batter quickly and thoroughly. Don't worry if the batter seems thin.

Turn into two 9-in. layer cake pans which have been lined on bottom with paper, then greased. Bake in moderate oven (350F), 30 min., or until done. Surprise Frosting: First, crush six or eight peppermint candy sticks in the food mill; set aside.

Make quick and easy white frosting by combining 1 c. granulated sugar, 3 tbsp. light corn syrup and 1-3 c. water in a saucepan. Place over heat and stir until dissolved. Cook until liquid forms a soft ball when a little is dropped into cold water. Beat egg white until stiff. Pour hot syrup slowly into egg white, beating constantly.

Cover bottom layer of cake with the frosting, then sprinkle crushed peppermint candy over it. Add the top layer, swirl frosting over it and add the rest of your candy generously.

If preferred, crushed candy may be added to the frosting before spreading it.

Things can be made still easier by mixing the cake entirely in a 2-qt double boiler instead of a bowl. Simply melt the chocolate and shortening in the double boiler, cool to room temperature and proceed with mixing as directed above.

Remember Mother On 'Her' Day

With Mother's Day coming up Sunday, the thoughtful child in addition to giving her a bottle of perfume, a new handbag, or two or three pairs of nylons will make Mother a present of a little leisure on "Her Day" if its no more than preparing the Sunday dessert.

So—how about baking Mother a cake?

Here's one that any teenager can tackle and be sure of success:

Sift flour to the amount of 2 c., measure the 2 c. into the sifter, add $\frac{3}{4}$ tsp. salt and set sifter aside. Melt 4 sq. unsweetened chocolate and 4 tbsp. butter or other shortening in a mixing bowl over hot water. Cool to room temperature. (This is important). Add 2 c. sugar and mix well. Mix together 2 unbeaten egg yolks and 1 c. milk; add to chocolate mixture and blend well. Sift in flour, mix until all flour is dampened, then beat 1 min. at low speed or about 150 strokes by hand. Add 1 tsp. vanilla and half a c. more milk; stir until smooth. Dissolve 1 tsp. soda in another $\frac{1}{4}$ c. milk, stir into batter quickly and thoroughly. Don't worry if the batter seems thin.

Turn into two 9-in. layer cake pans which have been lined on bottoms with paper, then greased. Bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 30 min., or until done.

Surprise Frosting: First, crush six or eight peppermint candy sticks in the food mill; set aside.

Make a quick and easy white frosting by combining 1 c. granulated sugar, 3 tbsp. light corn syrup and 1-1/2 c. water in a saucepan. Place over heat and stir until dissolved. Cook until liquid forms a soft ball when a little is dropped into cold water. Beat egg white until stiff. Pour hot syrup slowly into egg white, beating constantly.

Cover bottom layer of cake with the frosting, then sprinkle crushed peppermint candy over it. Add the top layer, swirl frosting over it and add the rest of your candy generously.

If preferred, crushed candy may be added to the frosting before spreading it.

Things can be made still easier by mixing the cake entirely in a 2-qt. double boiler instead of a bowl. Simply melt the chocolate and shortening in the double boiler, cool to room temperature and proceed with mixing as directed above.

Pickaway Aid-For-Aged Benefits Shown On Upswing

942 Cases Are Listed By Agency
$40,359 Paid Out Here, Report

Aid-for-aged benefits in Pickaway County were on the upswing in April compared to the three previous months of January, February and March.

E. C. Ebert, sub-division manager of the local aid-for-aged office, said April's case load was six above the March recipient total, eight above February and 12 above January.

Figures released by the local office manager showed April with 942 cases, March with 936, February with 934 and January with 930.

In April, Pickaway County aged beneficiaries received a total $40,359.80, the largest figure since the beginning of the year. Ebert compared April's allotment with March when $39,921.20 was spent for aid benefits.

Tidelands Bill Debate Delayed

ALTHOUGH AID benefits have been increasing steadily for the last four months, the number of case loads is not out of proportion. Total aged benefits are flexible—increasing in one period and decreasing in another, Ebert declared.

April's case load represented a $438.60 increase over March in assistance checks paid out by the state, Ebert said.

He showed how the case load figures are made to vary each month because of deaths and case transfers in and out of the county.

Actually, he revealed, 10 new cases were added to the county list in April, but nine deaths were recorded and "we have a certain number of beneficiaries which have transferred into our jurisdiction while others have left this county to become wards in other counties," Ebert stated.

In March, the manager disclosed, 11 new cases were added, but death claimed five recipients, "plus, of course, the transfers in and out."

Assistance checks were averaging about $41 with largest expenses attributed to food, clothing, rent and medical aid, Ebert said.

YOUNGSTOWN, May 8—Youngstown faces drastic reductions in police and fire protection forces and a slash of 50 percent in street lighting, effective May 16.

Mayor Charles P. Henderson told city council yesterday the action was made necessary by defeat of a 2.5-mill operating levy in Tuesday's primaries.

The slashes include a layoff of 52 policemen and 49 firemen, closing of five fire stations out of 12 and a reduction in labor forces.

Sales Tax Take Shows Business Riding Boom

Total sales tax collections for Pickaway County in 1948 for the period ending April 24 were almost $10,000 higher than recorded in the same period last year as increased sales and higher commodity costs continued to show the figure above previous estimates.

In the weekly report issued by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, collections for 1948 were listed at $61,186.74 while tax intake for the corresponding period of 1947 showed total collections at $51,492.04.

However, the report showed a slight drop in comparing the week ending April 24 this year with the same week of 1947. Ebright's release listed $3,589.41 collected compared to $3,651.43 in the week's time last year.

At the close of April 30, the state treasury showed a balance of $263,582,805.61 with a weekly expenditure of $48,276,671.68, Ebright disclosed.

A New Pepper for Freedom Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Distributed to Central Press Association

SOMETHING new and better for the Freedom garden is a pepper that is said to surpass its parents. It's called Penwonder, because the plant breeders of Pennsylvania State college developed it.

It's a cross between Harris' Early, one of the quickest to mature, and California Wonder, which has been tops in yield and quality among the bell-shaped peppers.

It is reported that this cross combines the virtues of the parents, being early, heavy yielding, thick-fleshed and top quality. Best of all, its fruits hang down, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. This makes them easy to pick without injury to the plant.

Pepper plants are generally set out in June, in rows 18 inches apart, with two feet of space between the rows. Peppers will stand any amount of dry weather so long as they are thoroughly cultivated. Shallow cultivation is

A moderate dressing of manure or a complete fertilizer can be hoed into the soil when the plants are about eight inches tall and repeated again when the first fruits set. This will help to promote early growth and an early maturing of the fruits. Keep the fertilizer three to four inches back from the stem of the plant, as illustrated.

If you like sweet peppers, there are a number of kinds to choose from in addition to the new Penwonder. The tomato type includes the cheese or squash variety. Among the larger and mild kinds is the bell or bulb nose type.

If you like them hot, the hottest of the small red peppers for seasoning is Tabasco, famous for the sauce made from it. Long Red Cayenne is the variety generally used in the making of chili sauce. The Hungarian variety is popular for flavoring and canning.

Dime And Guess Bring Fortune

HOLLYWOOD, May 8—A dime combined with a shrewd guess opened exciting new horizons for Mrs. Ward S. George and her disabled veteran husband today.

The couple bounced from comparative rags to moderate riches last night when Mrs. George, 32 and attractive, won $20,000 in prizes on NBC's "People Are Funny" radio show.

She correctly named Cairo, Egypt, as the city designated in a riddle put to 29 other contestants in earlier weeks of the contest.

For solving the riddle, she receives a three bedroom home, with $4,200 worth of furnishings, a four-door sedan, $2,000 cash with which to buy a lot for the home and a job for her husband.

Burmese Premier Reported Hanged

LONDON, May 8—A Reuters dispatch from Rangoon said that former Burmese Premier U Saw was hanged today for the July 19 assassination of Premier U Aung San and six cabinet members.

The news agency said that the execution took place early this morning in the Insein jail in Burma.

U Saw, 48, and eight others were found guilty last Dec. 30 by a special tribunal in Rangoon and sentenced to death.

Wainwright Calls For MacArthur's Return To U. S.

MADRID, May 8—The United States, Great Britain and France reached agreement with the Franco government today on taking over an estimated $50,000,000 worth of German-owned assets in Spain.

Wainwright, who succeeded MacArthur in the defense of the Philippines, declared it was the "duty" of Congress to call MacArthur to this country for his recommendations.

In Tokyo, MacArthur disclosed he had received a request from Wainwright that he return to this country to advise Congress on defense matters. He said that his reply was sent through the Army.

It was recalled that MacArthur refused to return for congressional appearances several months ago because of the press of his duties as supreme commander in Japan.

Wainwright said that MacArthur knows "from bitter experience what lack of preparedness can do under the vicious attack without warning of an utterly ruthless enemy."

The Texas general lauded MacArthur's administration in Japan, which he said was unequalled by any other man today in this tortured and war torn world.

CINCINNATI, May 8—Courageous action by a Cincinnati couple was credited today with possibly saving the lives of their three children.

When fire broke out in the family home yesterday, Mrs. James Hopkins, 28, climbed through a bedroom window with one child. Then she took the other two from her husband and lit them to safety.

waves all claims against the German government in return for a percentage of the gross receipts derived from liquidation of the assets.

This percentage, to be calculated on a sliding scale, is expected to average between 20 and 30 percent.

The remainder will be divided in conformity with the Paris reparations agreement among the United States, Great Britain, France and 15 other Allied nations with claims against Germany.

The Soviet Union will not share in the proceeds. Russia waived all claims for reparations from Western Europe in the Potsdam agreement.

The United States and Great Britain each will receive 28 percent—or an estimated maximum of some $10,000,000—and France 16 percent. The remaining 28 percent will be shared proportionately by the 15 other nations.

Tidelands Bill Debate Delayed

WASHINGTON, May 8 — Senate consideration of the hotly disputed tidelands bill appeared delayed today until after May 17, when the Senate judiciary committee will decide whether to give the bill its approval.

An aide of Sen. Downey, (D) Calif., who succeeded Monday in getting the bill on the Senate calendar, said Downey would wait until the committee acts before trying to force floor action.

Some Capitol Hill observers predicted the postponement meant the measure would not be acted upon this session, due to the logjam of "must" legislation expected during the closing weeks. The bill's supporters, however, claim they will still have plenty of time to bring it to a vote.

The tidelands measure, which already has been passed by the House, would give individual states title to the oil-rich submerged tidelands bordering their shores. The titles would extend as far out to sea as the state boundaries extend.

5 Youngsters Die In Flames

DETROIT, May 8—Five small children perished today in a flash fire which trapped them in their second floor bedroom and destroyed their Detroit home.

Their mother, 31-year-old Mrs. Florence Orton, was burned seriously about the face and arms in a futile attempt to mount the flame-engulfed staircase to rescue the children.

The victims are Dennis Orton, 3; Jerome, 5; Patricia, 7; Harry, 9, and John, 12.

Mrs. Orton was rushed to Detroit's receiving hospital, where she told police the oil stove in which she was kindling a fire exploded and immediately filled the livingroom with flames.

Actually, he revealed, 10 new cases were added to the county list in April, but nine deaths were recorded and "we have a certain number of beneficiaries which have transferred into our jurisdiction while others have left this county to become wards in other counties," Ebright stated.

In March, the manager disclosed, 11 new cases were added, but death claimed five recipients, "plus, of course, the transfers in and out."

Assistance checks were averaging about $41 with largest expenses attributed to food, clothing, rent and medical aid, Ebright said.

Sales Tax Take Shows Business Riding Boom

Total sales tax collections for Pickaway County in 1948 for the period ending April 24 were almost $10,000 higher than recorded in the same period last year as increased sales and higher commodity costs continued to show the figure above previous estimates.

In the weekly report issued by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, collections for 1948 were listed at $61,186.74 while tax intake for the corresponding period of 1947 showed total collections at $51,492.04.

However, the report showed a slight drop in comparing the week ending April 24 this year with the same week of 1947. Ebright's release listed $3,589.41 collected compared to $3,651.43 in the week's time last year.

At the close of April 30, the state treasury showed a balance of $263,582,805.61 with a weekly expenditure of $48,276,671.68, Ebright disclosed.

Tidelands Bill Debate Delayed

WASHINGTON, May 8 — Senate consideration of the hotly disputed tidelands bill appeared delayed today until after May 17, when the Senate judiciary committee will decide whether to give the bill its approval.

An aide of Sen. Downey, (D) Calif., who succeeded Monday in getting the bill on the Senate calendar, said Downey would wait until the committee acts before trying to force floor action.

Some Capitol Hill observers predicted the postponement meant the measure would not be acted upon this session, due to the logjam of "must" legislation expected during the closing weeks. The bill's supporters, however, claim they will still have plenty of time to bring it to a vote.

The tidelands measure, which already has been passed by the House, would give individual states title to the oil-rich submerged tidelands bordering their shores. The titles would extend as far out to sea as the state boundaries extend.
